Awards

From state and national journalism organizations, Columbus Monthly took home a total of 18 awards in 2019 for excellence in journalism, design and photography.

The biggest award of the year went to Columbus Monthly’s newest annual publication, Columbus Monthly Health, which took first-place honors in the national City and Regional Magazine Association’s Ancillary: General Interest category for its inaugural issue.

Columbus Monthly was among the top five magazines for CRMA’s General Excellence award in 2019. This was the third year in a row that Columbus Monthly was a finalist in that prestigious spot for its circulation size, winning first-place honors as Best City Magazine in the country in 2018 based on mission, editorial content, reporting, photography and design.

Columbus Weddings was also a finalist for CRMA’s Ancillary: Weddings award.

Suzanne Goldsmith’s “Seeking Sanctuary,” the story of an undocumented immigrant who decided to live in a Clintonville church rather than be deported, was 2019’s story with the most first-place finishes.
